

CONNECTING ACROSS CULTURE AND FAITH IN SCHOOLS AND COMMUNITIES

Date: Monday, 28th April and Tuesday, 29th April 2008
Time: 10.am - 4.30 pm
Venue: Institute of Family Therapy, 24 - 32 Stephenson Way
London, NW1 2HX
Cost: £170

Organised by the Centre for Cross-Cultural Studies and the Centre for Mediation Studies and Conflict Resolution at the Institute of Family Therapy

Michelle LeBaron: Professor of Law and Director of Dispute Resolution at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada; Author of "Conflict Across Cultures", "Bridging Troubled Waters".

There will be a range of workshops and papers from presenters in the fields of education, cross-cultural studies, systemic psychotherapy, mediation and conflict resolution.

In this two day conference, we hope to bring together perspectives from the fields of conflict resolution and intercultural studies, to provide those working in schools and communities with a range of skills and ideas for conceptualising and intervening in school and community conflicts.

The conference is aimed at teachers, learning mentors, education welfare officers, school counsellors, head teachers, community workers, youth workers, mediators, social workers, psychologists, family therapists, professionals in higher educational institutions and other interested mental health professionals.

These two days will provide participants with a space for thinking and networking.

The Conference is organised by the Intercultural Conflict Resolution Group. Members: Laura Cockburn, Shila Kasabova, Lorraine Schaffer, Reenee Singh and Paula Spencer.
